GRAINY IMAGE

The world's most popular carb isn't just for sushi or burritos anymore. Urban Outfitters' recycled rice-sack pillows are emblazoned with trendy and colorful global designs that suit those equally trendy DIY-style spaces. $20 each; 80 Powell St., 415-989-1515; urbanoutfitters.com

INTO THE WOODS

Crafted from fallen Pennsylvania hardwoods, Terofoma's Loft three-piece condiment set combines rustic timber with the look of modern utensils. Norwegian designer Thea Mehl draws inspiration for its look from airplane propellers. $55; by special order, Anthem, 3274 Sacramento St., 415-440-6500; anthemaf.com

DRINK MIX

Fashioned from recycled glass that's processed in a wind-powered electric furnace, Esque's Coolade pitcher and glasses are elegant vessels in which to serve your favorite libations. The striking fuchsia and apricot tints add sass to plain water without any additional caloric intake. $238-$586; branchhome.com

BABY MINE

Self-taught SF seamstress Jenny Rinzler is teaming up with Australian designer Umbrella Prints to create mod, gender-neutral baby blankets made with organic fabric and solvent-free ink. The pachyderm-printed Cluccio Tandem quilt makes a good case for stylish swaddling. $270; Rose and Radish, 460 Gough St., 415-864-4988; roseandradish.com
