SLEEK-IFY YOUR KITCHEN

Have a wedding to attend this summer, or need a Father's Day or [insert special occasion here] gift?

HyArt Gallery carries Teroforma "Lolo" tableware ($45-$80)—sleek, stainless steel flatware and serving pieces that quietly convey a nonfussy, minimalist look. Pick out a five-piece setting, serving set, salad set or serving knife in either brushed or polished finishes. As with everything HyArt sells, the subtle artistry of Teroforma's tableware fits in with the gallery's other more artsy offerings—jewelry, sculpture and vases.

Another organic offering from Teroforma (that's perfect for Dad!) are Whisky Stones ($15)—a set of eight soapstone cubes perfect for chilling a single malt. The stones cool down the whisky enough without diluting it like ice. Cool idea.

Find it: HyArt Gallery, 133 W. Johnson St. 442-0562.

WELL-SUITED

A suit should make a man feel polished—like he stepped out of the pages of GQ. After all, the price alone practically demands a return on his investment. That's why Lands' End Year'rounder wool suit is a luxe, yet reasonably priced, asset in a guy's clothing portfolio.

The wrinkle-resistant, two-button suit has a more contemporary and tailored fit—something that might be a surprise to those who only think of Lands' End for family beach basics, polos and khakis. After all, the brand is stacking up their Year'rounder suit against Hugo Boss's (a brand frequently seen in, yep, GQ) "Pasolini" two-button wool suit.

At a price tag of $320 versus Hugo Boss's $795, it's not the clothes that make the man, it's the man who knows where to shop—and look magazine-worthy (for less) in the end.
